

Athens Municipality managed to maintain social cohesion in the most difficult and fluid period of these last few decades, as well as to reinforce social programs, while responding to the needs of our fellow citizens who were and still are in need.

Respect, dignity, transparency on one hand, and modern management methods on the other, allow us to support those in the weakest and help reintegrate the omitted from society.

In order to be close to the citizen, we have secured new resources of funding from European and private sources. What is important, however, is that we have initiated citizens, organizations and the private sector, resulting in doubling the number of families which can be supported today by the Athens Municipality.

As long as there is the need, we will proceed to new solidarity initiatives to ensure the orderly operation of the city.

George Kaminis
Mayor of Athens

During the second term of George Kaminis (2014-2019), solidarity to citizens and residents of Athens continues to be our absolute priority. We are gradually expanding our range of services to new fields of activities.

We are approaching citizens and residents in more holistic way of their needs, and with full respect to the principle of non-discrimination of the basis of sex, ethnicity, religion, disability and age.

We are mobilizing all available human and financial resources and expertise, major EU programmes, as well as public and private donations and sponsorships. At the same time, we are promoting collaboration with civil society and nongovernmental organizations, and we are making good use of volunteer offered to our services.

Maria Stratigaki
Vice Mayor of Social Solidarity, Welfare and Equality
Ass.Prof. of Social Policy (Panteion University)
